Strange Meeting	Wilfred Owen was a Shropshire lad who  struggled to get an education and then  struggled to find a poetic voice. Sent to the  battlefields of the First World War it was  only when he painfully renounced his  unquestioning jingoism that he produced his  masterpieces. Russell Davies considers the  achievements of Owen who was born 100  years ago.	Broadcast on  Radio 4 on 19  March 1993.  Producer David  Perry and  Kenneth Branagh  reads Owens  poems and letters.
The Routes of English	Melvyn Bragg presents a series surveying  1,000 years of spoken English as reflected in  the dialects of Britain.  This is episode 5 Border Talk. The border  town of Oswestry lies a few miles into  Shropshire, to the east of Offa’s Dyke – the  ancient earthwork that traditionally divides  Wales and England. Yet on market day  Welsh is the talk in the sheep pens and local  accents mix a Shropshire burr with the lilt of  Welsh. Bragg travels to Oswestry to  discover how 1,000 years of feuding and  intermarriage have resulted in a fascinating  linguistic union	Broadcast on  Radio 4 on 21  December 2000   Producer Simon  Elmes  Original was on  cassette tape
Wilfred Owen – A Remembrance Tale	Jeremy Paxman tells the tragic story of the  renowned First World War poet who, at a  time of jingoism and nationalist propaganda,  described the brutal atrocities of war in  shocking and poignant detail.	Broadcast on  BBC2 on 11  November 2007  Director/Producer  Louise Hooper.  Wilfred Owen is  played by Samuel  Barnett
